Casual Games Association (CGA), an international trade organization that runs the Casual Connect gaming conferences in Europe, Asia, the Americas, and beyond, has announced major changes in their typical conference lineup.

“Beginning in 2017, Casual Connect will be rotating events between regional cities regularly. We are open to suggestions for which cities our attendees would like to visit. Please email us at jessica.tams@casualconnect.org if you would like your city to be considered in our rotation schedule,” said Casual Games Association Managing Director Jessica Tams, adding that CGA hopes rotating conference locations regularly will provide professionals in different regions new opportunities to participate in Casual Connect.
